

PRESERVATION WEEK

The Blue Tile Project

Wednesday, April 27th | 6-8 PM

Julia Ideson Building – Meldrum Room

500 McKinney, Houston TX 77002

In celebration of Preservation Week, the Houston Metropolitan Research Center will host the founders of The Blue Tile Project to discuss their efforts to preserve the blue street tiles that can be found across the city. The blue tile street signs lined our streets as early as the 1930s and are slowly disappearing. These signs are the first known street art in Houston. The vision of the Blue Tile Project is to bring awareness to the street tiles and give Houstonians something to call their own. For more information about the project, check out their Facebook page or visit their website <http://www.bluetileproject.com/>.

This event is free and open to the public.
